KELLOGG'S HERITAGE

Kellogg's products have been making Australian life tastier for almost a century.

In 1924 the first corn flake machine was set up in a rented building in the Sydney suburb of Chippendale, churning out our signature, golden Corn Flakes® for the first time ever on Australian soil.

A few years later we had to build a new plant in Botany, where we're still making our original Corn Flakes to this day.

Over this time, we've become an integral part of the Australian way of life, whether through the development of Aussie original cereals like Just Right®, Sustain® and Nutri-Grain®, or sourcing the vast majority of our ingredients from our local farmers – over 94 per cent of our cereals are produced with 70 per cent Aussie ingredients.

Since we opened that Botany factory in 1928, we've produced over four billion kilograms of cereal. We're proud to have played this role in the Australian story and we look forward to producing four billion more.

WHAT WE BELIEVE

We have been making some of Australia and New Zealand's favourite cereals and snacks for over 90 years, and we take great pride in crafting great tasting, great quality foods for you to enjoy.

Over those 90 years, we have released hundreds of new products, one thing all of these products have in common is our vision – to create foods and brands that matter for you.

We've created our Global Breakfast Food Beliefs that date all the way back to our founder, W.K. Kellogg and shape the way we make our foods today.

SUPPORTING THE COMMUNITY

Over the last 10 years, we've provided 3 billion servings of food to people in need, supported 329,000 farmers through climate-smart agriculture programs and reduced greenhouse gas emissions to the equivalent of taking 510 million kilometres off the road.

Locally, through our current Breakfast For Better Days program, we've donated approximately 25 million serves of food to Aussies and Kiwis in need since 2014, and we're committed to continue doing our part to support local communities in need.

We know that people care about where their food comes from, the people who make and grow it, and that there's enough for everyone. That's why we have been long time supporters of hunger relief programs – from donations to Foodbank to school breakfast clubs, and in 2013 we introduced our global Breakfasts for Better Days initiative to donate 1 billion serves of cereal and snacks to children and families in need.

We have also been working with the Clontarf Foundation for several years, supporting their mission to help close the gap between indigenous and non-indigenous Australians, by working to improve the lives of young indigenous men in Australia.

SUPPORTING AUSSIE FARMERS

WHERE OUR GRAINS ARE GROWN

We source around 30,000 tonnes of grain every year from Aussie farmers all around the country. See where our grains are grown on the map shown.

CORN

The Peters from the Queensland farming region of the Darling Downs have supplied corn to Kellogg's since the 1950s.

WHEAT

Manildra producer Terry Cotton's family has been supplying wheat to Kellogg's since 1943; that legacy is now carried on through his daughters Jacqueline, Alexandra, Fiona and Victoria.

RICE

The Morshead family have been supplying rice to Kellogg's (through SunRice) for over 50 years now.

CONSERVING NATURAL RESOURCES BY REDUCING WATER, ENERGY & WASTE

We believe we have a responsibility to protect our planet and ensure generations to come have enough essential resources for the next 110 years and beyond. That's why we have committed to conserving natural resources by reducing the amount of water and energy used by our offices and factory in Botany, as well as reducing the amount of waste we produce.

We have done this through a whole range of initiatives to improve the efficiency of our plant, more accurately capture and track data and partnering with organisations that can help improve the environmental impact of our products, even after they leave our warehouses & reach your home.

ONE STEP CLOSER TO A MORE SUSTAINABLE PLANET

Our world is facing a significant crisis: more than 900 million people face a future of food insecurity brought on by a growing population, climate vulnerability and severe malnutrition.

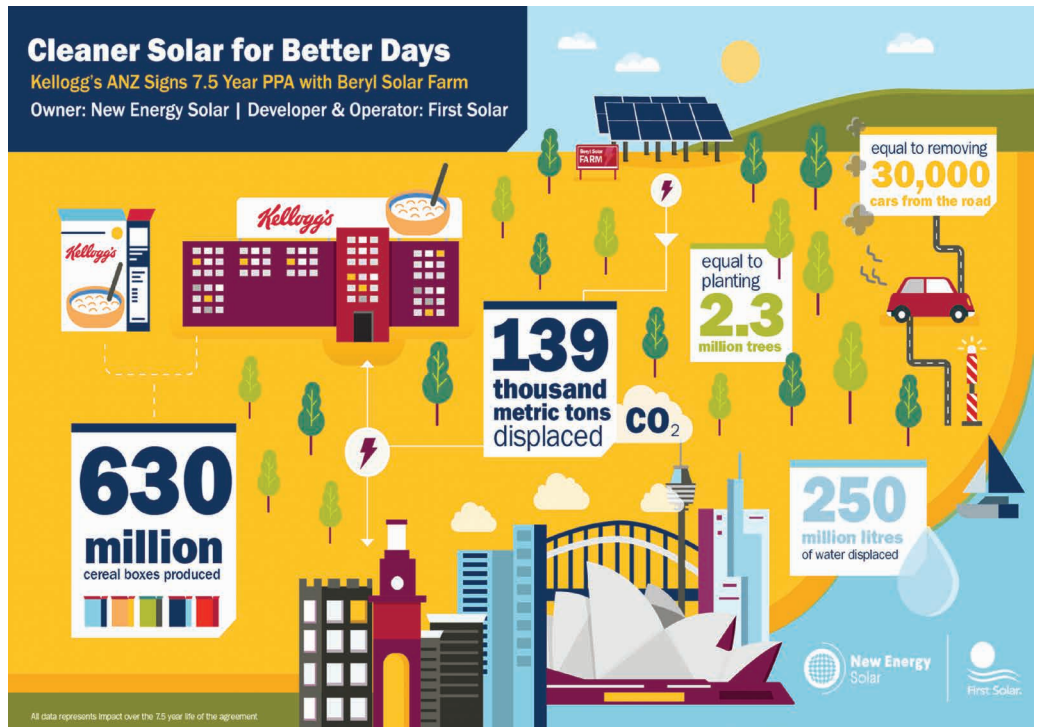

Kellogg's launched our new global responsibility initiative Better Days, which is committed to helping end hunger and create better days for 3 billion people by the end of 2030.

We're really excited to share another historic milestone in our journey to do the right thing by our planet, conserving natural resources all along the value chain - from responsibly sourcing ingredients and reducing food waste, to providing recyclable, reusable or compostable packaging.

And we're not stopping at sustainable energy. Here are some of the other ways we're making changes to reduce our environmental impact...

RECYCLABLE PACKAGING

We committed to making sure that 100% of our packaging will be reusable, recyclable or compostable by 2025, and we're well on our way to achieving this. Today, around 98% of our packaging is recyclable – either via kerbside for our cereal and snack cartons or through REDcycle for cereal bags and snack wrappers.

REDUCING WATER USE

Right now, we're facing intense pressure globally as water scarcity, urbanisation and population growth continue to increase.

Since improving and increasing the digitisation at our factory and installing 40 water meters, we're proud to say that we've reduced our water usage by over 45% in the last two years. We're continuing to find ways to minimise our water use - not only here at Kellogg's but also in the communities we work with to source ingredients.

WASTE REDUCTION

We take a holistic view of waste across our value chain and are currently focusing on three key areas:

- ✓ Total waste reduction across our operations
- ✓ Food loss and organic waste in our operations and supply chain
- ✓ Packaging used for our foods

By driving waste reduction in these areas of our Botany factory, we've been making great progress in the reduction of waste, with now only 4.85% of waste being sent to landfill.

We also removed all single-use plastics from our offices and factory, which has resulted in a staggering 600,000 items annually no longer going to landfill!

We're really proud of the work we're doing. As we move forward with our Better Days™ commitments, we look forward to finding new and innovative ways to reduce our impact on the environment and help protect our planet.
